LEADS SUCCESSFUL ATTACKS AT MARNE

General Mangin.

General Mangin, "the hero of the Marne," was removed by the "defeatist" faction of the French in 1917, but he has leapt to the front again as the leader of the French in their successful attacks against the Germans between the Aisne and Marne. Under his leadership the French succeeded in wresting from Hun hands the territory north of Verdun, bristling with fortifications. Last March when the fifth British army was in retreat he appeared with his army and halted the Hun drive to Paris.

STRIKING EXAMPLE OF GERMAN KULTUR

Picture of Two French Children, Victims of Hun Bayonets, Received From Joss Schlatter, Former Janesville Boy

To show why the Americans as well as all the rest of the civilized world hold such intense hate for the Germans, Joss Schlatter, former Janesville boy now in France, writes to his mother enclosing a picture of two little French children, victims of Hun bayonets. The two youngsters, while sleeping, were cut and stabbed with bayonets in the hands of heartless Germans. The picture of the innocent children in forms a graphic example of what the allied nations are fighting to prevent.

VICTIMS OF HUN BAYONETS.

Numerous other crimes of a similar nature are known by Schlatter to have been committed by the Hun. He sends this picture merely as one instance of their brutality. The letter which accompanied the picture follows:

"I have waited the last four days for mail before writing, but will not wait any longer. I think the bodies must have made a hit on one of the boats carrying mail as it has been some little time since the last mail came in. I presume by this time you have received the pictures I sent a few weeks ago. I have some more that I will send as soon as they are finished.

"I am sending you in this letter a picture that will show some of the (German) Kultur. I have delayed sending this until I know now that States of the German Kultur by some of our own men that have been over here and have seen all of these things. I am sure that the censor will permit this picture to go through.

"The town that these two little children lived in was invaded by the Boches some time ago and in the picture you will see the evidence of one of their crimes. These two children were bayoneted while they slept. This is only one of the many crimes that have been committed by them. I have visited the town where these two children were so unmercifully butchered several times. I cannot mention the name of the town. I could go on and mention more similar crimes committed by the Boches but this one shows you what they will do.

"Well, I just glanced through to-night's paper and everything looks very favorable for us. I presume that you have read of the great work that our lads have been doing since we have gone into the thick of the game over here; they are all anxious to get at the Boches."

"Joss."

JUDGE CONTINUES TO MULCT DRINKERS WHO VISIT CITY

Dry Town Drinkers Continue To Come To Municipal Court And Judge Maxfield Continues To Give Them The Limit.

Oscar Thompson told Judge Maxfield that he just came down from Stoughton to have a good time. When questioned as to his good time he admitted that he had got drunk and was arrested. The Judge then told him that his best time was coming and he was given a fine of twenty-five dollars and costs or thirty days and ten days.

Mike Streek came from Beloit for the same purpose but owing to Mike's truthfulness he was only given twenty-five dollars and costs or thirty days. Coming from a dry town to get drunk, Olaf Rogstad was the next, claimed Detroit, Mich., as his home, and Henry Ford as his former employer. Evidently Olaf was not satisfied with Henry's five dollar a day plan because he stated that he had quit to come to Wisconsin to work in the harvest fields.

He denied that he was a hobo or stated that he was married and had three children and that he always supported his family. He was given ten dollars and costs or fifteen days. Then came Tony Hendrick, a Janesville man. He wore a big smile and readily admitted that he had been drunk. He stated that he was a hawker and also that he liked his drink. He was given ten dollars and costs or fifteen days.

O. J. Dietz owner of the Auto Inn was brought before Judge Maxfield this morning by Sheriff Whipple and answered a charge of selling liquor on Sunday.

On his plea of guilty he was given a twenty-five dollar and costs or thirty days.

MUNICIPAL COURT HAS BEEN A BUSY PLACE THIS WEEK

Fines Totalling Nearly Four Hundred Dollars Imposed By Judge Maxfield Since Monday.

Fines aggregating nearly four hundred dollars have been imposed by Judge Maxfield in the municipal court in the past two days. Twelve men were found guilty and fined on drunkenness charges on Monday, and this morning five men were fined. Four for getting drunk and one for selling liquor on Sunday.

The police department according to Chief Peter D. Champion has experienced the busiest summer in several years. Each morning there are several offenders to be brought into court.

Chief of Police Champion has issued instructions to his officers to keep a lookout for all men who come to Janesville from surrounding dry towns to get drunk. It is the desire of the city officials to eliminate this practice as speedily as possible.

CALL FOR THREE LIMITED SERVICE MEN IS RECEIVED

Three To Be Sent From This District To Camp Dodge, Des Moines.

A call for three special or limited service men was received this morning by the local board. The three men selected will entrain August 30 or 31 for Camp Dodge, Des Moines, Iowa. The nature of the work which they will be required to perform is unknown to the board, the call merely ordering that three limited service men be sent to that camp.

The date and hour of the entrainment will be announced as soon as the train schedule is received from the adjutant general's office. The men go as a part of the call for 400 men from the entire state.

See These Beautiful Cars at The Fair
NASH SIX OAKLAND

We are proud indeed to be able to direct your attention to two such lines and know that you will, if you are at all interested in buying a car, look with keen pleasure at these models.

THE NASH Six--Beautiful--Powerful--Comfortable

[Perfected Valve in the Head Motor]

Three prime qualities you look for in a motor car are beauty, comfort and power. These three qualities are well combined in the NASH SIX.

You will like its beauty of line from radiator to tail light.

It's double-cowled, airline body, a deep Nash blue, penciled with gold, is swung low upon a clean strong chassis of 121-inch wheelbase.

The Nash airline body is so designed and constructed as to offer the least possible resistance to the atmosphere when the car is in motion. Its well-upholstered seats are deep and wide and so shaped that they form a restful support for their occupants.

Both back and front compartments are roomy and the car carries five passengers with space to spare. Long semi-elliptic springs for a car of this size, 40 inches in front and 56 inches in rear, let the car take its passengers over the road most comfortably. And it gets its unusual power and quick "pick-up" from its deep breathing Nash Perfected Valve-in-Head Motor.

THE OAKLAND--Sensible Six

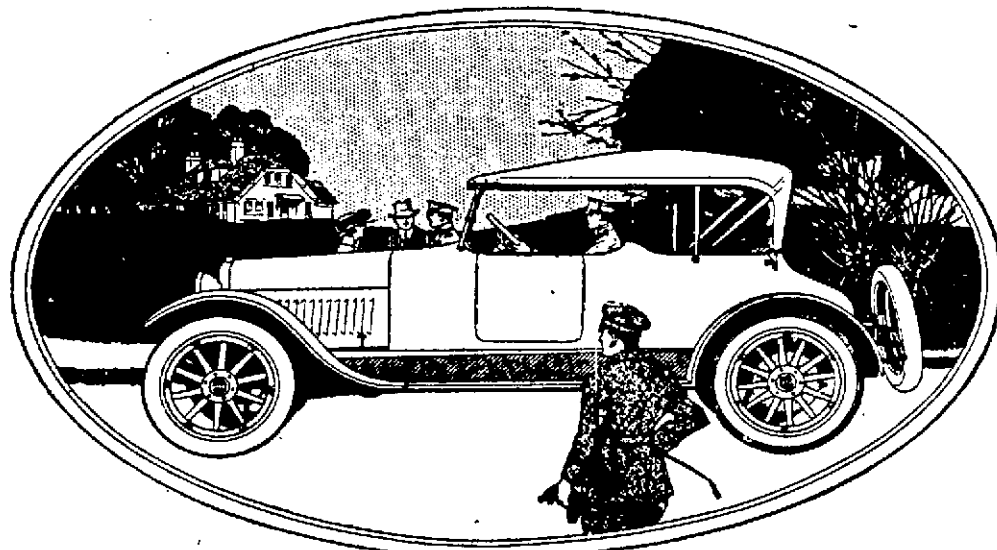

Upward of one hundred thousand careful buyers now have tested its mettle under rigorous every-day service and to everyone of them this car has delivered an unequaled degree of satisfaction.

The new Oakland Sensible Six is essentially the same car as its predecessors, with such improvements as have been developed by Oakland engineers, resulting in greater power, additional comfort, improved appearance and lower operating cost. Specialization on this single type of car has resulted in not only the attainment of mechanical excellence, but also gives a measure of car-value and car-quality unsecurable by any other means. The vastness of Oakland manufacturing operations enables the Oakland company to continue the improvement of the Oakland product at a minimum of cost to the Public and to offer the Oakland Sensible Six, an automobile which in combined stamina and economy represents a value hard to equal at this time.

We are going to display our AVERY KEROSENE TRACTOR at the Fair. Be sure to look them over. A special invitation is extended to all farmers.

SIX REASONS FOR AVERY KEROSENE TRACTOR SUCCESSES.

The design and construction of a tractor is mighty important. Study these special features in the design and construction of Avery Kerosene Tractors and you will understand why they are making good on any size farm—large, medium or small.

First—Avery Tractors have a special sliding frame which makes possible the elimination of the intermediate gear, shaft and boxings. An Avery Tractor has the least gears, the least shafting and the least bearings of any two-speed, double drive tractor built—which means more power and longer life.

Second—Avery Tractors have two rear drive wheels and two speeds—a big advantage over single-drive and one-speed tractors.

Third—Avery Tractors have slow speed, heavy duty opposed motors—not high-speed, light automobile motors.

Fourth—Avery crankshafts are one-half the diameter of the cylinder or more. You don't need to be afraid of having a broken crankshaft.

Fifth—Avery motors have renewable inner cylinder walls. These wearing parts can be replaced without buying an entirely new cylinder.

Sixth—Avery Tractors are entirely free from all pumps and fans. All such easily broken and troublesome parts are done away with in the construction of an Avery Tractor.

All these features are fully described and illustrated in the 1918 Avery catalog. The valuable information which it contains will make it well worth your time to read over. Ask us for one.

This newspaper is a member of the Wisconsin Press Association and pledges its uncompromising loyalty to our government in this war.

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the use for republication of its news dispatches carried by wire and other means. This paper and also the local news published herein.

NEWSPAPER EXCHANGES.
A suit was created in many newspaper offices when the United States War Industries board issued a ruling that newspapers, owing to paper shortages, are not to be allowed to give out any free exchanges.

The board was led to make this rule by the careless habits of many newspapermen in maintaining exchange lists. Many publishers grant exchanges to every brother publisher that applies, and thus the newspaper papers into the waste basket. This aggravates the serious shortage in the paper supply.

However a well regulated exchange list is an aid to the publication of a good newspaper. The government does not want to regulate it too drastically. The government must remember that it gets its principal support in disseminating information about the war from the newspaper press. Anything that helps the publisher print better newspapers helps build up the war morale of the community.

God blesses from the war largely circulate from one newspaper to another through the exchange lists. The public may laugh about the editor with his scissors and paste pot. But the more an editor works and studies over his exchanges the more bright ideas he collects and can pass on. If exchange lists are wholly cut off the circulation of much good war stuff that the public ought to have will be impeded.

Publishers can comply with this order by course by charging each other up with the price of their papers sent in exchange, so that where the papers are given for the same price, no money will have to change hands. But it would seem as if the government would do well to allow newspapermen to maintain a small list of exchanges, to encourage the free circulation of ideas and information helpful to war and community purposes.

INVESTIGATING SPIRIT.

Some people wonder why this lack of success in life, when others apparently less brilliant have attained higher positions. The answer to this question is often found in the question whether a man has the investigating spirit or not.

This spirit wins success in big fields and little. A notable example of it has been seen in the way the Germans have conquered Russia. The Germans have a remarkable extent to this investigating spirit. Sometimes their investigations have been nullified by their failure to understand other peoples.

But in Russia their spirit of patient investigation did win out. While France, England, and America were hoping blindly that Russia would come through and keep fighting, the Germans had their investigators working their way. They sized up the situation, and persuaded the simple minded Russians to surrender their arms and run home. While it was a success won by falsehood, yet it was based on thorough investigation.

To take our part in world competition we too must have the investigating spirit. If we are to prevent the Russians from becoming the mere slaves of Germany, we must have our own investigators learning how we can secure Russian co-operation.

We need more of the investigating spirit in all our life. Many men make failures in business because they do not study in advance the conditions they are going to deal with. They see the situations around them, and imagine that people in other conditions want the same thing. Then they invest their money in some proposition at a distance. When they get there they find conditions wholly different, and their proposition not calculated and their proposition not calculated and their proposition not calculated.

Success of any kind, national or personal, is built on a thorough study of the conditions we have to meet.

GOOD NEWS.

It is good news the word that comes by letter and mail "over there." It is cheering news and shows that right will conquer in the end. Our boys are doing their bit across the seas, honored and respected by the people whom they have come to fight for and perhaps die for.

Perhaps it is the lesson taught by their American cousins that has wakened the English to make their last drive so successful perhaps a feeling that they did not wish to be outdone, but at any rate the "Huns" are retreating. It is never expected to when they thought to capture Paris six weeks after the war was declared in 1914.

It must be a hard task for the German leaders to tell their people that they have failed in their efforts to drive the "fragments of Americans who escaped their U-boats into the sea." Even if the leaders really thought to fool the people with their talk of prowess of the U-boats and how few Americans had really landed, they will find it a difficult task to relate the truth as an excuse for their defeat by these self same soldiers of the republic they professed to despise and hate.

The Hun invasion has been halted but the enemy is not vanquished as yet. The news comes to us as good news but we will need more of it for months to come before the final count comes and the world "finle" is written at the bottom of the last page of the current history of this war. It will not be written on "scraps of paper" either, but will be printed in the blood of the men who gave up their lives for the cause of democracy and world peace.

feel that he should also handle the telephone and telegraph systems, and later no doubt command all the allied armies in the field.

PAIR DANCE.

To fall to attend the fair this week means that the individual loses an opportunity of seeing what wonders this country has accomplished in agricultural matters this past year and how rich the land is in reality. Fat stock of every breed and variety is to be found on the grounds and the exhibits of women's work and other displays all are worth careful inspection. These are fair days and we should make the most of them and not slight the opportunity offered us to enjoy and be instructed by what has been arranged for our benefit and approval.

The grocers who have been prosecuted for selling large amounts of sugar to favored customers, are getting lots of free advertising. They were probably among those who can't afford newspaper space for legitimate publicity.

Anyone who believes the regular yarns about the German Crown Prince being captured, must be prepared to believe that the Americans have penetrated many days' marches inside the German positions.

Great jubilation is expressed by the pro-Germans over the fact that the submarines operating on our coast got three row boats and a canoe the past week.

Prominent among the people who will be howling for lack of coal next winter, will be the inhabitants of many cities where blazing electric signs are being permitted all through the summer.

By the time the Americans get to the Rhine, they will still find the Germans claiming that all the American transports are being sunk by submarines.

It is denied that certain newspapers have been edited by persons of pro-German belief, as they merely sold out their editorial space.

The people who growl about the new taxes on automobiles are reminded that 90 per cent of the population still find walking excellent exercise.

As many of the railroads are putting on women as station agents, it is confidently predicted that blooms will be added to the station equipment.

Many people who are roving around from place to place in search of higher wages, get advances nearly enough to pay the cost of moving.

WHOS WHO in the Day's News

COUNT GEORGE VON HERTLING.
Statesman, philosopher and diplomat—these are the titles applied to one of the foremost personages in Germany in the conduct of the war.

He is Count George von Hertling, chancellor.

The latest upheaval in which he figured was the downfall of Dr. Richard von Kuehman, foreign secretary, and the appointment of ex-minister to Christiana, Admiral Von Hintze, to the place.

Count von Hertling was born in 1843. His father was a court chamberlain and his mother came from a Portuguese banker's family which settled in Frankfurt-on-the-Main.

Von Hertling married a Catholic and at twenty-four was a "private docent" at the University of Bonn and a professor in 1881.

Later he went to the Munich university to occupy a chair of philosophy, remaining there until 1912, when he was made Bavarian prime minister.

While in the German parliament he watched the tremendous growth of the "Centrum," the German Catholic party now represented in the reichstag by nearly 100 members.

For several years Von Hertling was a follower of Dr. Lieber, democratically inclined politician, skilled in larger expenditures for the reforms than was spent for armaments, declaring the Germans no longer could bear the burden of war preparation.

THE YANK WHO GOT A COLONEL

I wish I could have seen him trudging rearward with his prize. Seen the grin upon his visage and the twinkle in his eyes.

I wish I could have heard him in that shout: "See the bird I captured! Take a look! I got a colonel!"

Oh, I fancied when I read it I could almost hear him chuckle. As he grabbed that naughty Russian and then calmly made him kneel.

And I'd like to see his picture printed here in every journal. Proudly coming in from battle about him: "Hey! I got a colonel!"

I don't know where he hails from, and I don't know his name. But I hold that Yank's entitled to a goodly share of fame.

It would be an inspiration to our boys through time eternal to read about that dough boy who went out and bagged a colonel.

THE SAD FATE OF ANNETTE.
When the wife went summering she left in our care Annette Kellerman, our goddess.

Shortly afterward Annette grew despondent and committed suicide because we forgot to feed her. Did you ever try to find a place in New York to bury a goldfish?

We went bravely forth with a fire shovel in our hand and Annette in our pocket and waited until 1 o'clock in the morning looking for a place to bury her with military honors.

Whenever we found a likely place there would be a twentive story building standing on it. Everywhere there was asphalt and cement, and one can't do much to that stuff with a fire shovel.

We had the same trouble before when Roszka and Yancsi, our beautiful goldfish twins, passed away. That time we stood by a subway entrance and slipped Roszka and Yancsi into the coat pocket of a man who looked as though he wouldn't care. That was in the winter when there were overcoat pockets.

No such chance this time. We got home at 3 o'clock after a tiresome search, with Annette still in our pocket. Then we read about the famine in Russia and we put Annette in a fine little box all comfy and cozy and mailed her to Leon Trotsky, Moscow.

RICH RUSSIAN COUNTESS MADE STARVING REFUGEE BY GERMAN BARBARIANS

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS)
Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 13.—From a wealthy countess, owning hundreds of thousands of acres in Russia, to a poor starving refugee was the fate of a woman within a week after the barbarous Huns invaded and pillaged helpless Russia. The incident is mentioned in an interesting letter from Dr. Carl Holliday to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Holliday of Knoxville.

"I found a position for a Russian countess recently—she was on the verge of starvation," he writes. "A woman of fifty, who owns hundreds of thousands of acres in Russia, but that counts for nothing now."

"Dr. Holliday writes that he is 'putting into passable English' a pamphlet written by a Russian officer, showing the necessity of immediate intervention in Russia by all of the allies."

He recently finished the Preparation of the United States Constitution for the press for distribution among the troops. He also compiled for the government a little book on American Principles and Ideals, composed of extracts from state papers, speeches, etc., which he says "undoubtedly will help the foreigners to understand more thoroughly the fundamentals of American government." He also wrote for distribution among French schools a pamphlet on what America has done during the past year for the allies.

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

To calm any fluttering fan's heart who looking at the picture and thought it was a picture of Tom and his wife known here and know that we permitted Kathleen to stay in merely because she is a pretty little girl, and because Tom looked so much better holding her hand than he would have all alone by himself. No, they are not married—not even engaged.

Tom, former Rough Rider, deputy marshal, scene writer and director, is now one of the most daring "stunt" actors in the films. Of course, all of his scenarios call for him to play a cow-puncher, a good man, or a bad man, of the plains and mountains. And no matter whether he is good or bad the matrons sit and watch him with bated breath and admiring worshipping eyes, and the youths with a note of envy in their voices say, "It's great stuff."

And Tom deserves it all, the admiring glances and the youthful words of praise for he is by far the greatest thrill-producer on the screen today. He thinks up most of his stunts himself and makes them during the process of filming. He will be trying a stunt and a new idea will come. He tells the director about it and although it may sound impossible the camera is set and Mix always puts it over. He will never resort to a duble, and insists on doing all the stunts himself. Like all great actors he hates to talk about himself, but once in a while he will tell a few stories about the old days in Texas. When asked how he liked pictures, he said:

"I like them perhaps because it's all so real and natural to me. Wish you'd seen a little stunt that we pulled off in the last picture we took the thing about thirty miles from here, where there's a cliff that hangs out six or seven hundred feet. About fifteen or twenty feet from the top there's a shelf in the rock. A little girl has fallen over the cliff on the rock. There's no other way to rescue her, so I ride up, faster, my rope to the horse's saddle and go down to the shelf, hang over, hand the rope up, and then, otherwise I didn't mind it because I knew my horse would stand there on the edge of the cliff. When I'd fastened the rope around my body, I took the little rope and my arms and then yelled to the horse to back up away from the cliff. He yanked us both to safety. See? Oh, I like it, it's great stuff, this motion picture business."

Polles Gives Man to Movies
It is quite a common thing to read that Thora Odgen, the flicked film's newest and most beautiful star, was formerly with the Ziegfeld "Follies," but it is very unusual to read that a man was married from those same ranks. It is true, however.

Do you remember Will Rogers? Yes, the man who used to come out dressed like a cowboy, chewing gum and throwing a lariat. The man who always had a little act all to himself in the "Follies." Well, he's gone and done it. He is to star in the photoplay, "Laughing Bill Hyde," Anna Lehr will play opposite him.

Flashes From The Films
The title of the first Triangle-Holmes feature is "His Father's Safety Razor."

Niles Welch has signed to play juveniles for four years with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. Norma Talmadge, select star, has been made a deputy sheriff of Queens county. Miss Talmadge is summering at Bayside.

Perhaps they have them in the movies. Anyway Edith Storey will shortly be seen in a new picture entitled, "The Silent Women."

Whitewater News

Whitewater, Aug. 13.—Guy Congdon furnished a bit of excitement here yesterday afternoon by releasing arrest. Last week he stole a calf near Palmyra and was lodged in jail near that city. Friday he broke the lock on the door and has been at large ever since. Word had been sent to this city to be on the watch for him and yesterday afternoon he was recognized and Officer McLane told him he was under arrest. Right away he got busy and objected to be taken to city hall but was soon induced to do so and was put in a cell. The authorities were notified and soon two officers arrived and Congdon was handcuffed to an auto and taken to Jefferson, as the quarters at Palmyra were not secure.

AN OVERWHELMING ARRANGEMENT. A MAJESTIC MARSHALLING OF PATRIOTISM—DECENCY'S CHALLENGE OF THE HOHENZOLLERNS.

MANAGER ZANIAS SAYS:
I have been informed by the Metro Pictures Corporation, who are putting out this picture, "To Hell With the Kaiser," that it is the most startling picture of the century, an astounding prophecy.
No one who wishes to be well informed should miss seeing this beautiful seven-act patriotic picture, which shows in detail the plans made by the Prussian war lords to conquer the world and the final defeat of their schemes. The battle in the air of two opposing aerial armies is shown and the capture of the Kaiser by an American girl and an American aviator. Powerful love and interest is combined with scenes of great historical value in this production. Hoping you will be present at one of the performances. Respectfully yours, JAS. ZANIAS, Mgr.

I was living a quiet time at the hospital, working the barracks next door each day for wood, along with Kate, and getting a little more food sometimes, and was always nice and warm. I thought myself quite a pet. Compared to what I had been up against, it seemed like real comfort. But the more food I got, the more I wanted. And it was food that brought me down, after all.

Across from us was a barracks in which there were English officers, and somehow it seemed to me that they must have had a drug. Every once in a while I saw what looked like vegetables and boxes of something that was a dead ringer for brown flour. So I told Slim, or Kate, as I was calling him by then, and with him on guard, I soaked out.

After two or three false starts, I got over our barbed wire and their barbed wire, and in through a window.

There I saw carrots! And Graham flour!

I took all I could carry, to divide up with Kate, and then started eating, so as not to waste anything. It was certainly some feast—the only thing besides mud bread and barley coffee and "shadow" soup that I had to eat in Germany. Then I started back to the hospital. I got over their barbed wire all right, and Kate gave me the go-ahead for our entanglements, but just as I was going over them a sentry nabbed me. At first I thought Kate had turned traitor, because we had had a little argument a short time before.

But later on I figured that he would not have done a trick like that, and besides, he knew I was bringing him something to eat. So the sentry must have sneaked up without Kate seeing him. Who got the carrots and Graham flour that I was carrying I do not know. The sentries booted me all the way back to my old barracks.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Despair—and Freedom.

While I was working at the hospital conditions at my old barracks had been getting worse and worse. Very few of the men were absolutely right in the head, I guess, and almost all had given up hope of ever getting out alive. Though they put up a good front to the Huns, they really did not care a great deal what happened to them. The only thing to think about was the minute they were living in.

The day I came back two Englishmen, who had suddenly gone mad, commenced to fight each other. It was the most terrible fight I have ever seen. It was some time before the rest of us could make them quit, because at first we did not know they were crazy. When we had them down, however, they were scratched and bitten and pounded from head to foot. Both of them bled from the nose all that night, and toward morning one of them became sane for a few minutes and then died. The other was taken away by the Germans, still crazy.

Another time an Australian came into our barracks and very seriously told us that he had a drag with the German officers and that he had been to dinner with them, and had had turkey, potatoes, coffee, butter, eggs, sugar in his coffee, and all the luxuries you could think of. We just sat and stared at him. It seemed impossible that any of our own men would have the gall to torture us like that, and yet we could not possibly believe that it had really happened. Finally, one fellow could not stand it any longer. He was nothing but skin and bones, but he grabbed a dividing board and there were just two wallpops: the board fit the Australian's head and the head hit the floor. Then half a dozen more pounced onto him and gave him a real licking. When he came to he had forgotten all about the wonderful dinner he did not have.

Not long after this the Russian doctors proved to the Germans that there was no black typhus in our barracks and we were allowed the freedom of the camp except that we could not visit the Russian barracks. That was no hardship to me nor to the rest of us, except one chap from the Canadian Range, who had a special pal among the Russians that he wanted to see. And, of course, when it was verboten, he wanted to see him all the more.

A day or two after the order I was standing outside the barracks door when I saw this fellow come out with a dividing board in his hand. I thought he was going to smash somebody with it, so I stood by. But he stooped over and jammed one end of the board against the threshold of the door, scratched the ground with the farther end of the board and measured again. He kept this up, length by length, in the direction of the Russian barracks. The sentry in the yard stopped and stared at him, but the fellow kept right on, paying no attention to anybody. Pretty soon he was right by the sentry's feet and I thought any minute the sentry would give him the butt, but he just stared a while and let him pass. That had measured the whole distance to the Russian barracks, went inside, stayed a while and calmly strolled back with the board under his arm. When he reached our barracks again he told us he had found a vine mine. What he had found was something not so unusual—a bonehead German.

There was a lot of bamboo near the Russian barracks and the Russians made baskets out of it and turned them in to the Germans. For this they got all the good jobs in the kitchen and had a fine chance to get more to eat. But they were treated like dogs—rats. All except the few Cossacks that were in the bunch. The Huns knew that a Cossack never forgets and will get revenge for the slightest mistreatment, even if it means his death. I have seen sentries turn aside from the heat they were walking and get out of the way when they saw a Cossack coming. There were very few Cossacks there, however. I do not think they let themselves get captured very often.

We had roll call every morning, of course, and were always mustered in front of our barracks, the middle of the line being right at the barracks door. Sometimes when the cold got too much for them, the men nearest the door would duck into the barracks. As they left the ranks the other men would close up and this kept the line even, with the center still opposite the barracks door. Finally almost all of the men would be in the barracks and by the time the roll was over not one remained outside. This seemed to peeve the German officers a great deal, but they did not punish us for it until we had been doing it for some time.

For several days I had noticed that someone else answered for two men who had disappeared; at least I had not seen them for some time. I did not think much about it, or ask any questions, and I did not hear anyone else talk about it, but I was pretty sure the two men, a Russian and a Britisher, had escaped. But they were marked present at roll call and all accounted for. Everything went along very well until one day when the name "Fontaine" got by without being answered. Fontaine was a French fireman from the Cambrian Range and that was the first time he had not been present. We saw what was coming and we began to get pretty sore at Fontaine for not telling us, so we could answer for him and keep the escape covered.

The minute they found our count one short they knew the Winties and a squad of sentries came up as an extra guard. They counted us again, but by sneaking back of the line and closing up again we made the count all right except for one man—Fontaine. We would have tried to cover up for him, except that they had already discovered his absence. Now, we thought, they will nab Fontaine but will not discover the escape of the others.

But evidently they suspected something, for soon they brought over a petty officer from H. M. S. Nomad, who had not been with us before, and forced him to call the roll from the mustering papers, while they watched the men as they answered. Then they discovered that two more besides Fontaine were missing and began to search for them.

The other two spoke German and had been missing for at least three days and, I think, had escaped by this time. They were not returned while I was at Brandenburg.

This was about 7 a. m. They drilled us down to the little lake, where the cold was much greater, and kept us there until 5 p. m., without food or drink. At about eight that morning they found Fontaine in a French barracks and kicked him all the way to the lake where we were.

All day long we stood there, falling one by one and getting kicked or beaten each time until we dragged ourselves up again. Two or three died—I do not know the exact number. But we had enough strength, when ordered back to the barracks, to kick Fontaine ahead of us all the way. We did not get anything to eat until seven the next morning—twenty-four hours without food and water, ten of which were spent in the snow without any protection from the cold and wind. No wonder we kicked Fontaine for bringing this punishment on us and endangering the two who had escaped—he had simply strolled over to the French barracks and forgot to return.

Now, the food received was just about enough to keep us alive. I suppose, with true Kultur, the Huns had figured out just how much it would take to keep a man on this side of the starvation line and gave us that much and no more. So we were always famished—always hungrier than you probably ever have been. But sometimes when we were ravenously hungry and could not hold out any longer we would trade rations.

One man would trade his whole ration for the next day for a half ration today. That is, if you were so hungry that you thought you could not last out the day on your regular share, you would tell someone else that if he gave you half his share today you would give him all of yours tomorrow. If he was a gambler he would take you up. That is, he would gamble on his being alive tomorrow, not on your keeping your word. He knew you would come across with your ration the next day, and, like as not, if you tried to keep it from him, he would kick you, and nobody would blame him.

It certainly was hard, when the next day came, to give up your whole ration and go without that day. But I never saw a man hedge, or even speak of it. And we did not have any food pirates among us either: we were not captives of industry by any means.

[National Crop Improvement Service.] "As we see it, our patriotic duty is to utilize our crops to the best advantage after having grown them," says Mr. Frank Beckes, who has organized the Agricultural Commission of the American Steel and Wire Company, "to form local units to supplement the advice given by the Government in Bulletin 984, on drying of fruits and vegetables."

"Everybody knows that in the average garden there is actually more produce wasted than utilized. This is due to the fact that the old-fashioned art of food evaporation has largely been discontinued, and the modern housewife, owing to the cheapness of sugar in the past decade, has confined her efforts in food conservation to preserves, jams and jellies."

"When I was a boy every farmer had strings of pumpkin, squash, dried apples, peaches, sweet corn, and many other fruits and vegetables which were laid away for future use and served when fresh vegetables were not to be had. Modern transportation brings us tomatoes, lettuce, radishes, onions, etc., every month of the year from the south, and city people have formed the habit of eating fresh vegetables in and out of season. But, in this war, lack of cars and the necessity of conserving our grains for shipping to the Allies make it imperative that we save

Dinner Stories

In one corner of a railway carriage sat a very little girl in charge of a nurse. The mother sat opposite.

behind an illustrated paper. Suddenly there were wriggles and peevish cries, and a voice from behind the paper said:

"Give it to her, nurse." Still the crying went on, and again from behind the paper came the injunction:

"Oh, do let her have it, nurse; it's no use letting the child cry." Suddenly the cries rose into a howl, and the mother, appearing from behind the paper, said indignantly:

"Why don't you do as I tell you, nurse? Let her have it at once!" "She's got it, madam. It's a wasp!"

It was the sweet scent of the lilies in the conservatory, the beauty of the young girl's hair, or the excellent champagne he had taken at supper that led to his proposing to the obscurity beneath a palm.

"It cannot be," she said. "I am unworthy of you."

"Oh, rubbish!" said he. "It is true; it is true." And she sighed.

"You are an angel," he said ardently.

"No, no; you are wrong," said the girl. "I am vain, idle, silly, utterly unfit to be your helpmate through life."

He laughed lightly, then said, in a

MAGNOLIA

Magnolia, Aug. 12.—The "Magnolia Players" presented a play, entitled "The Dumb Bells," for an evening at the town hall. The play was well received, and many were unable to get into the hall at all. The players played their parts exceedingly well, and the audience was very much interested.

Those who predicted that our town could not produce a play, are now realizing that we are equal to anything we undertake. The door receipts were fifty dollars and sixty-five cents ($50.65), and without a doubt the hall was taxed by the largest crowd in many years. All of the town were present, as well as the audience, and the chairman of the Magnolia Red Cross, as well as the players, wish to thank those who attended for their generous support. The play is to be given Tuesday evening of this week at the Footville hall, and Wednesday evening.

Members of the family were awakened, and found what was going on. Immediately called the County Sheriff to come to their aid, but he was not found. Sheriff Whipple taking charge of the trunk returned to Janesville at day break.

The heavy rain on Sunday delayed threshing on Monday.

COOKSVILLE

Cooksville, Aug. 12.—Threshing began on the Fred Miller farm last week and grain is yielding beyond all expectations.

The Community club met last Thursday, and some work was done. The old ladies, knitted, Mrs. Belle Lee and Mrs. Alice Johnson were guests, and they brought some work from the Evansville Red Cross for us.

As near a tornado or a cyclone as we ever had, struck here last Tuesday morning, tearing down trees for miles, blowing down two of three for Ella Morgan and one large one for Mrs. Savage and laid the church sheds on the ground. Some are for selling it to rebuild in the winter. Of course the ladies will have to help get dinners, etc., well we'll see!

Two days, Sport and Rex lived neighbors, one day a man was working in the field near here, and Sport came up and barked at him. The holes in attention, and the dog went away, after a while he came back and barked again, and the man said, "I'll follow him and see what's the matter. He did and found Rex in one of the holes. These holes are three feet deep and had the man not helped Rex out, he would have died there. These holes were dug last spring, but as help was scarce, the poles were not set. A few miles east of here, I am told, a cow stepped in one and broke its leg. It had to be killed. Near here a little boy fell in but some one was near and helped him out. A little girl fell in but was helped out, and unless the holes are covered, more accidents will occur.

Had did great damage to tobacco a mile and more north of here last Tuesday, but buyers have offered 20 cents, and that is good, when one considers that good tobacco used to bring 5 cents and less some years ago.

MORRIS MILLER

Miller Huggins has come to the conclusion that further playing might prove injurious to Roger Peckinpaugh's injured wrist and he has given the Yankee captain a vacation. It is possible that Peck will do little work for the remainder of the season. Ward played the position during three of the games of the Cleveland series and while not a Peckinpaugh he left little to be desired from a fielding standpoint. Peck has not been able to swing a bat, so the change does weaken the club from a batting standpoint.

A new baseball record was established when the Pirates and Braves played for twenty innings recently without a score for either side. Pittsburgh won the game by scoring two runs in the twenty-first inning. Mauer and Cooper pitched for Pittsburgh, while Nehf went the entire route for Boston. Nehf gave twelve hits while Boston batted the Pirates boxmen for fifteen hits.

The Red Cross is going to suffer as the result of the decision on the part of Fanny Durack to cancel her engagements in the east. In no section of the country is the aquatic sport stronger than along the Atlantic seaboard. A series of races between Fanny Durack, Charlotte Fyfe, Claire Gallison, Olga Borchert and the remainder of eastern mermaids would draw record crowds in any of our big swimming centers.

That the Australian girl has seen

MR. WAD MUST HAVE THOUGHT HE WAS TALKING TO CHARLIE CHAPLIN OR ROSCOE ARBUCKLE!

it to cancel all of her Red Cross engagements means she is more or less peeved at the treatment she has received from athletic officials in this country. To the outsider it does appear as if the amateur authorities went a little out of their way to cause the champion from the land of the kangaroo unnecessary trouble.

The plans have been the work and effort of Dr. Sumner Hardy, the member of the executive committee of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association on the Pacific coast. The league is expected to make the competitive events on the Pacific coast the most successful and remarkable in this country. From the preliminary plans the clubs of Sacramento, Berkeley, Oakland, San Jose and Alameda are all to enter teams, along with several of the influential clubs in San Francisco and Los Angeles. The new courts of the Berkeley club are to be utilized for the most important of tennis tournaments.

Michigan will have to struggle through the next track and field season without the services of Steve Farrell, the Ann Arbor track and field mentor. Steve is the latest college trainer to accept an appointment as first lieutenant in the sanitary corps. Walter Camp displayed good judgment when he signed the Michigan trainer to one of Uncle Sam's fighting contracts. The success which he enjoyed at Ann Arbor is sure to follow him as a trainer of "airmen."

Eddie Dollard, successful basketball coach at Syracuse university for eight years, has been offered a fat contract with one of the largest schools of learning of the east to take charge of all branches of sport. Inasmuch as Dollard has a prosperous engineering branch in sport, inasmuch as Dollard is likely that he will turn the offer down.

Speaking of boxing and the work or fight order. How about these healthy, easy-going individuals who are adding coin to their purses—if they aren't making a living entirely by arranging bouts at which boxers can dance a few minutes and pull in the silver—immediately thereafter divvying up with said managers. There are so many other occupations in which these manager individuals could be of some use in helping to win the war that we will not try to enumerate them.

It undoubtedly would be hard on most of these birds because the majority of them have lived off the gate receipts all their lives and don't know what work is. Their hands might lose their lily whiteness, but war is inconvenient anyhow, so they'd have to stand it.

And how we would cheer if we heard that a lot of the seconds, who have pestered us at a hundred fights by bobbing up within range of our vision at the critical point of the bout, had joined the army or navy. If they could be made to pester the Germans off hours the way they annoy folk at the ringside time and again a lot of Germans would quit in disgust.

Johnny Hayes, who won the Marathon race at the Olympic games in London, is anxious to do "his bit" in the war by serving as a Knight of Columbus secretary overseas.

Until 1908, Hayes, clerking in a New York department store, had done nothing to win fame. He was a good clerk, selling ribbons by day and training in long distance runs by night. However, Hayes became a worldwide celebrity when he was first to breast the rope in the Olympic Marathon. He wore the colors of the Irish American Athletic club, New York city, in that race. It was the first Marathon in the Olympic games won by a runner from this country.

Young Hayes bore his honors modestly, never forcing himself into the limelight of publicity unless he was called upon to do so.

What he liked to do best of all was to train young runners so they too, some day, might bring glory to the name of American runners. His advice, is director of physical training, has been sought by many, and he is now engaged in supervising the physical training of students at North Bergen, N. J., under the direction of the board of education. Many of the young men in the American army abroad, now doing a Marathon chasing the foe, owe their ability to "stick" through long, wearisome marches to Hayes' advice.

Hayes would like to chase a few Germans himself over the Marathon distance, but since he cannot do that, he is trying to do the next best thing by volunteering to go overseas as a K. of C. secretary.

An informal Davis cup tennis competition at doubles only is being held in England just now, with teams representing the United States, Canada, Great Britain, Australasia, and South Africa playing each week. Just who are on the American team is not made known, but the Field has the following to say of the venture:

"This war for freedom has called all free men to action, and the great comradeship of arms, with its many common purpose and sharing a common sacrifice, must assuredly find expression when peace returns in a greater comradeship. It is certain that those outdoor pursuits and games which have a universal vogue will play their part—and no mean part—in a stronger fraternalization founded on mutual sympathy and understanding, which will be the outcome of the democratic ordeal."

WORLD SERIES MIGHT DO NOTABLE WORK

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS)

New York Aug. 12.—The reluctance of John K. Tener, president of the National league, to get his organization mixed up in a world's series this year, may be traced to a pair of reasons—first, patriotic belief in a policy of adhering strictly to the government's wish to make every man within the draft age work or fight; secondly a dislike for Ban Johnson and his methods, which would hardly permit Tener to sit at the council table as the national commission prepared the rules for the forthcoming contest.

It is scarcely a good policy to abandon the impressive playing of the world's series, for their present this year an opportunity for baseball to do itself immeasurable good and at the same time give soldiers and sailors a large bit of benefit from the fall classic. A world's series conducted along purely philanthropic lines, with the proceeds donated almost wholly to a fund to buy athletic equipment for soldiers and sailors in camp, would be immensely popular and would serve to turn many of the commercialized game to the other side. Tennis being given a high rating among war time sports because of its unselfish devotion to war activities.

Baseball could do the same thing, with the same good results. A period of grace lasting to the first of September has been granted. The baseball seasons should end late in August, with the world's series to follow immediately after. Tremendous sums could be realized from the games if the right methods were used. It might be, even, that the well known old theory that stars of the game should participate in a series with the world's championship club could be arranged, the same to turn its receipts into the fund for athletic equipment also.

ROCK PRAIRIE

Rock Prairie, Aug. 12.—Rev. J. Harvey McCormack, of Morning Sun, Iowa, will preach at the U. P. church next Sunday morning at the usual hour.

Miss Helen Barlow entertained the Young Ladies' Sunday school class last Sunday afternoon.

Rev. and Mrs. C. Y. Love and son Charles, of Paxton, Illinois, are here visiting at the homes of friends.

Miss Anna Plumb, of Milton, was a week-end guest of Miss Mary McLay. Bruce Buchanan, of Camp Grant, spent the week-end at the Thomas McCarty home. Dale Buchanan, also of Camp Grant, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wixon.

Mrs. Lewis Van Wagenen, of Menominee, returned home Saturday evening after spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Mack.
